1. Why do we sometimes feel as if God can't do more than we imagine?

2. Think about the last year in your walk with Christ. Were you more on the knowledge side or the experience side? Why?

3. What keeps you from recognizing, and receiving, all that God has for you?

4. How can we daily focus on how wide, high, long, deep God's love is for us?

What I will be talking about

We know God loves us but do we ever really feel it? We push, seek, force ourselves to read our Bible, pray, tell others about Christ but many times we do it out a feeling of necessity. We want to please God, don't we? Then why do we go through these seasons of doubt, dryness, stress of wondering where the heck He is. We want to experience His love daily. We feel overwhelmed, burdened sometimes, ok a lot of times when we are trying to seek God. Do you just get so overwhelmed and stressed out that you make yourself dry? In the last year think about if you were filled with God's love, experiencing it, loving life or were you more I'm forcing myself to read the Bible, I'm stressed that I God isn't answering me, I'm trying to figure out why I'm in a valley, etc. Which were you more? When we realize that God first loved us with nothing less but unconditionally, we begin to experience that love…not just know it. Christ said that everything you know comes from your heart yet we still live like we have to know God's love to experience it. Did you come to know Christ because it was the logical thing to do? Ha! Ya right! You experienced God's love in your inner most being. When that happens we can't help but live for God.
